Company News

At the portfolio level, the Fund's five largest holdings at month end accounted for 39.2% of the portfolio and are named in order of allocation: Pinnacle Investment Management, Netwealth, SiteMinder, Pro Medicus, and Xero.

The Fund's most significant contributor to performance during the month was Pinnacle Investment Management (+15.7%), as the market anticipated a strong full year result. More on that shortly. Audinate was the biggest detractor (-6.1%) on no news.

Pinnacle released its full year results the day after month end, with net profit growing +18% to $90 million and coming in ahead of consensus. Fund-raising efforts across the business were strong, with net inflows of $10 billion delivered for the year. Combining these solid inflows with positive investment returns saw aggregate funds under management (FUM) grow +20% to $110 billion, setting the group up for a strong start to the new financial year. Even more pleasing, was that the higher-profit-margin segments of retail and international led the growth, up 27% and 77%, respectively.

The business has a very strong long-term capital allocation track record, steeped in patience and discipline. With $186 million of firepower, Pinnacle is well positioned to take advantage if a compelling opportunity were to arise. In the meantime, we're excited to see their latest listed equity venture – to be named Life Cycle Partners – get off the ground given the reputation of the former-Royal-London team. It's very early days for Life Cycle Partners, though many of the hallmarks are present for this to be one of their best partnerships yet. Not only that, it will help the business accelerate expansion of its international institutional and retail distribution capability, and attract other high calibre investment teams to the Pinnacle stable.

Turning to Netwealth, which provided its final quarterly update for the financial year during July. The business delivered a strong quarter with net flows up 20%, and total funds under administration up 25% to $88 billion. The number of accounts across the business grew at a healthy 12.3% and now number over 143,000. The platform continues to gobble up market share and stands to benefit from increasing scale and widening margins following a period of heavier investment in recent years. We look forward to a comprehensive update on the business when it reports full year results later in August.

SiteMinder delivered a positive quarterly result which was mostly expected. The company reached the important milestone of free cash flow breakeven, reporting an underlying free cash flow margin of 4.9%, a 17-percentage point increase compared to last year. It's good to see management execute on their profitability commitments while also investing in new products and growing the business. We continue to see progress towards winning larger hotels, increasing room count in the Americas and EMEA by 70% year-on-year. This sets up positively for the release of the imminent new transaction-based products. Moving forward, we believe the company is in a good position to re-accelerate revenue growth.
